were issued during the years 1985, 1986& January, 1987;

Year	Letters of Intent	Industrial Licences
1985	1457	985 (including 544 COB licences)
1986	1130	618 (including 107 COB licences)
Jan. 1987	50	50 (including 8 COB licences)

(c) and (d) A letter of latent is granted with an initial validity period of one year and further extensions are also granted on adequate justification. After the entrepreneur fulfils the conditions of the letter of intent, the same is converted ino an industrial licence. The initial validity period of an industrial licence is two years within which the entrepreneur is expected to Jcommence production. However, further extensions beyond the initial validity period of two years can also he granted by the administrative Ministry concerned on genuine grounds. It generally takes about three to four years for an industrial project to fructify. Actual gestation period, however, varies from project to project If the holder 6f the letter of intent/industrial licence fails to impk-ment the letter of intent/industrial licence, the same is cancelled/revoked.
